Ambitious Science Teacher Preparation (ASTP) Conference

Conference conveners: David Stroupe is an Assistant Professor in Teacher Education and Amelia Gotwals is an Associate Professor in Teacher Education

Open to the public

Monday, June 4th
Erickson Hall, Kiva Room 103

Continental breakfast and light lunch included

Register at http://astp.create4stem.org

Featured Speakers:

Karen Hammerness
Director of Educational Research and Evaluation at the American Museum of Natural History

Anna MacPherson
Manager of Educational Research and Evaluation at the American Museum of Natural History

Mark Windschitl
Professor of Science Teaching and Learning at the University of Washington

Jessica Thompson
Associate Professor in the College of Education at the University of Washington

Melissa Braaten
Assistant Professor in Math and Science Education at the University of Colorado Boulder

Schedule:

9:00-9:45: Welcome, Introductions, and Overview of conference: David Stroupe, Amelia Gotwals, Joe Krajcik, Margaret Crocco
9:45-10:45: Using ambitious science teaching to make institutional shifts in teaching and learning: Karen Hammerness, Anna MacPherson
11:00-12:00: Panel discussion - Equity and practice-based teacher education: Angela Calabrese-Barton, Gail Richmond, Vaughn Watson, Joanne Marciano, Christina Schwarz
12:00-1:00: Lunch
1:00-2:00: AST - past, present, and future: Mark Windschitl, Jessica Thompson, Melissa Braaten, David Stroupe
2:15-3:15: Panel discussion - MSU teachers address learning opportunities: Amanda Guibord, Caeli Loris, Ryan Hibbs, Katelyn Obrien, Claire Morrison
3:15-3:30: Closing remarks: David Stroupe, Amelia Gotwals